And the statute does not prescribe the nature or quality of these acts, it only requires that they be in or affecting commerce. These words are not unconstitutionally vague. 12 Appellants contend that their guilt was not established because their conviction was based on the events of the week of June 19, 1979. While their activities on that date may not have been sufficient to prove a violation of the statute on its face, the evidence shows that at least a few of the individual sales took place prior to the statutory cutoff. Sales of ice cream from the trunk of an automobile were made on June 4, 1979, and one sale of clothing was made on June 7, 1979. These sales were admitted by appellants, and there was no challenge to their admissibility. Under these circumstances, we cannot say that a rational jury could not have found the essential elements of the crime beyond a reasonable doubt. See Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 319, 99 S.Ct. 2781, 2789, 61 L.Ed.2d 560 (1979). 13 As their final point on appeal, appellants argue that their sentences for a violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1073 (1976) were excessively severe. The District Judge imposed a sentence of two years on each count to run consecutively, to 82157476af
